Design review: giovannifusetti.com rebuild

Updated 11 October 2026 (replaces the earlier review). Prepared for the designer. Goal: as concise and legible as possible, guiding visitors to the info they need with no extraneous content or navigation.

Basis and limits

From the project notes, the live demo and checks in a desktop and a 375px preview: the Workshops list, Events list, workshop pages and the Italian list. Not tested on real phones or tablets, and the Home, About and Contact pages were not re-opened for this update.

Fixed or changed since the last review

- Status at a glance: every upcoming workshop now shows a status chip (Open, Waitlist, Pending, Closed) on the list and the workshop page, with automatic closing after a deadline and removal after the workshop ends.
- Order of facts: dates, location and chip now come before the title, on the list and on workshop pages. On phones: dates, location, title, chip, photo, tagline, button, all centred, with looser spacing.
- Rows: list rows are a standard 400px minimum on desktop (was uneven, up to 607px) and photos are never cropped.
- Buttons: DETAILS is one solid red button with no arrow; past entries use grey, so upcoming and past read differently at a glance.
- Page jumping: list photos reserve their space while loading, so the page no longer shifts.
- Reading order: screen readers now read the teacher line before the tagline on phones.
- Legibility: list taglines are now 18px (were 16px); list titles are 32px bold capitals.
- Pale-photo outline: removed from lists and workshop pages.

Working well

- Calm, consistent stack on the list; the chip answers "can I still join?" without opening the page.
- One accent colour, with red reserved for the call to action; contrast values were checked.
- Short menu (six items), no search, banners or pop-ups. Phone pages use accordions rather than one long scroll.
- Text column width, type scale, language switch and footer need no change.

Trouble spots, most important first

#	Issue	Suggested fix	Status
1	Applying is buried. On a workshop page, Application is the last of seven sections (on phones a closed row at the bottom). The chip says Open but does not point to how to apply.	Add a status-driven action beside the chip (APPLY, JOIN WAITLIST, GET NOTIFIED) that jumps to Application. Or move Application to just after Description.	Open
2	Deadline is hidden on the list. The list shows the chip alone; the deadline line appears only on the workshop page. The deadline is the most time-critical fact. "Open" alone does not say what is open.	Show the deadline line on the list when one exists (none is set today). Or write the chip as "APPLICATIONS OPEN".	Open (designer chose chip-only)
3	Closed and Waitlist rows are dead ends. No next step (mailing list, how to join the waitlist).	One italic line under the chip on the workshop page.	Open
4	DETAILS looks the same on every row, and titles do not look like links.	Keep the button (clearest cue). Also make the whole row clickable as a backup. Optional: label the button by action.	Open (recommended, not built)

#	Issue	Suggested fix	Status
5	Past rows are 400px tall with no photo, mostly empty space. With 145 past entries the Past list is very long to scroll.	Apply the 400px minimum only to rows with a photo; keep past rows compact.	New
6	List titles are not marked as headings in the page code (plain paragraphs), so screen-reader users cannot jump from title to title.	Mark each title as a heading (h2) and keep the current look.	New
7	All-capital 32px titles are harder to read when long. Several past titles wrap to two lines (for example Boulder International Clown Training 2017: The Red Nose).	Acceptable as is; or use capitals only for short titles. Low priority.	New
8	Phone workshop page hides Location, Schedule, Tuition and Application in four closed rows: about four taps to answer the basic questions.	Add a one-line summary under the title (dates, place, early-bird price) so the key facts need no tap.	Open
9	Creations and Gallery dropdowns hide six pages. The name "Gallery" does not say photos and videos.	Label it "Photo and Video", or list the two pages directly.	Open
10	Home has no direct path to current workshops other than the menu.	One line under the poem: "Upcoming workshops".	Open
11	Past workshops have year accordions but no way to find "has he taught in my city?".	Fine at this size; consider a search later.	Open (low)
12	Italian wording of the chips (Prossimamente, Aperto, Lista d'attesa, Chiuso) is a draft by Claude.	Needs human review before launch (see ITALIAN-REVIEW.md).	Open (content)
13	Centred text on phones suits short lines; long taglines in multiple lines read less easily when centred.	Check with the longest real taglines on a real phone.	Watch

Suggested next moves (in order of effect)

1. Add the status-driven action button beside the chip and reorder the workshop sections (issue 1).
2. Show the deadline on the list, and add the next-step line for Closed and Waitlist (issues 2 and 3).
3. Make list rows clickable and mark titles as headings (issues 4 and 6).
4. Let past rows be compact (issue 5).
5. Add the phone summary line, rename Gallery, and add the Home link (issues 8, 9 and 10).

Nothing in this review has been changed on the site. All recommendations are suggestions for the designer's decision.
